

Bryan Prince is an award-winning author of four books: I Came As A Stranger: The Underground Railroad (Tundra Books, 2004); A Shadow On The Household (McClelland & Stewart, 2009) ; One More River to Cross (Dundurn Press, 2012) and My Brother's Keeper: African Canadians and the American Civil War (Dundurn Press, 2015). He co-wrote the script for the television documentary A Thousand Miles to Freedom; is a co-producer of the concert series Road to Freedom; Canadian newsletter columnist for the Chicago based Center for Black Genealogy ; a consulting editor with England's digital project Slavery, Abolition and Social Justice and was a historical consultant on the PBS/Rogers film The William Still Story. He has contributed to many other publications including: Something to Hope For: The Story Of The Fugitive Slave Settlement Buxton, Canada West (Chamberlain Mercury Printing, 1999); The Transatlantic Slave Trade and Slavery: New Directions in Teaching and Learning (Africa World Press, 2012) and A Fluid Frontier: Slavery, Resistance, and the Underground Railroad in the Detroit River

Borderland (Wayne State University Press, 2016). He has been a member of many organizations and initiatives related to history and researches and lectures extensively across Ontario and the U.S. Bryan, along with his wife, Shannon, were the winners of the 2011 Underground Railroad Free Press award for the Advancement of Knowledge.